

ABSTRACT

A multiple run by run process is described. A plurality of tools and a plurality of products to be run on the tools are provided. A desired recipe is calculated for each product on each tool based on a previous recipe used for each product on each tool and deviation of a parameter from a target value. Thereafter, the plurality of products is run on the plurality of tools. The desired recipe is updated after each run of each tool.